

OLIVIA MILLAR RE-JOINS MANCINI DUFFY WINSTANLEY

Washington, D.C., September 1, 2010 — Mancini Duffy Winstanley is pleased to announce that Olivia Millar, IIDA, LEED AP, has re-joined the firm as Managing Director of Interiors. Her responsibilities will include leading the business development effort, setting sales and marketing strategy and working with the design director to reshape the firm's regional interiors practice. In her new position, Millar will focus on the corporate, government, retail and hospitality market sectors.

Millar began her career as a graphic designer, later joining Mancini Duffy in 2004 — before the firm merged with Michael Winstanley Architects Planners and Still & Svitchan Associates last year. She left Mancini Duffy in 2007 to launch the National Sustainability Practice for Studley, a global tenant advisory firm with 20 offices nationwide and in Europe. As the Managing Director of Sustainability at Studley, Millar worked with companies across the country to prepare green lease language, develop sustainable corporate policies, and oversee the LEED certification of new buildings and interiors projects.

"After our merger, Olivia and I spent lots of time discussing the vision for the interiors practice and how we could re-position the firm to achieve a higher level of design while at the same time maintain our client's budgets and satisfaction. Olivia has great ideas and I am thrilled to give her a platform to implement our shared vision," stated Michael Winstanley, AIA, AICP, Mancini Duffy Winstanley's CEO and Design Principal. "I am very excited about the future of our interiors practice in Washington, D.C. I think Olivia's rejoining the firm is a strong signal that our new vision for the firm as a whole is working."

"I'm very excited about the firm's commitment to design. By combining the strength of our local presence and the national design talent, I am confident we can re-position the Washington office to provide our clients a high level of design from a local platform." said Millar. "We have superior design talent in place, and we are looking to grow that talent base."

Millar was on the national committee which created the "Model Green Lease" as a guide to tenants and landlords to support green building operations. In 2008, Commercial Property News magazine named Olivia one of the top "10 Stars to Watch" and in 2007, Millar received the Emerging Leaders Award from NAIOP, the Commercial Real Estate Development Association, for her achievements in sustainability. "Sustainability will continue to be a very important part of what I do," she said. "Sustainability is integrated into everything we work on at Mancini Duffy Winstanley."

Millar was a Presidential Arts Scholar at The George Washington University where she received a B.F.A. in graphic design and a Master's degree in Interior Architecture. Millar is also a member of CREW and a board member of USGBC, National Capitol Region.

###

Founded 90 years ago, Mancini•Duffy has offices in New York City, Washington, D.C., Connecticut, and New Jersey. Also, as a member of IPID, International Partners in Design, Mancini•Duffy serves the diverse needs of its expanding multi-national client base across the U.S. and in Great Britain, Europe, East Asia and Australia. For more information, please visit www.manciniduffy.com.